SOVIET CALLS FOR ARMS PARLEY

CHS Cagers Trample Greenfield, 69-54

By PAUL SMALLWOOD
Herald Staff Writer
Circleville's Tigers accomplished a feat seldom recorded by a CHS cage squad—they downed Greenfield by a comfortable 69-54 score on the McClain floor.
Although the Tigers have won a few games in the McClain gym, it has been a rare occasion when they have been victorious by much as 15 points. After a slow first half they did it in a convincing manner last night.
The Tiger onslaught was due mainly to the performance of Bill Johnson who put on quite a show with his masterful shooting. Relying on his old favorite jump shot, the CHS ace rang the victory bell with 35 points, just slightly more than half the Tigers' total.
Johnson completely befuddled the Greenfield defenders who tried after every trick in the book to stop him but with little success. When he wasn't hitting his jump shot from outside he would dash underneath and collect a few tips.

IT MARKED Johnson's highest point output for the year. His closest scoring spree was in the Aquinas game when he collected 34.
As might be expected, Johnson had plenty of help from his teammates. Mike Hosler, John Wright, Jon Parcher and Dick Smith all did a good job feeding the Tiger bread and butter man.
In the scoring department Hosler had 12 points, Parcher nine, Smith six and Wright two. Don Rowland, seeing quite a bit of action as sixth man, registered three.
The Tigers' ability to smash the center of the hoop earned them the victory. The local forces hit 26 times in 65 attempts to end up with a commendable 40 per cent average. Greenfield lagged far behind with 26 per cent on 19 completions in 74 tries.

Another gratifying aspect for Coach Dick Boyd's cagers was their performance at the foul line. They hit 17 of 25 chances for their best showing this year.
The win should be classified as an important one for it gives the Red and Black crew a 1-1 record in South Central Ohio League play. Hillsboro currently leads the loop with two wins and no losses.
CIRCLEVILLE fought an uphill struggle in the early stages of the game. Greenfield took a short-lived lead but the Tigers managed to pull away, 19-14, at the end of the first quarter.
Although the locals led from this point on, they were hard pressed to hold a slim 38-32 intermission lead. At this point Johnson had collected 19 points and was far from finished for the evening.
Circleville started moving in the second quarter when Johnson hit for six straight points. Hosler dropped in two foul shots and Johnson added four more on two jump shots. Meanwhile, Greenfield retaliated with six points by Polk and Craft.
Greenfield's downfall came in the third quarter when the host team was able to score only six points compared to 16 for Circleville. Johnson had eight, Parcher four and Hosler and Smith two each.

Dulles Pessimistic About Arms Talks

WASHINGTON (AP)—Diplomatic sources here said today Secretary of State Dulles has doubts that new East-West disarmament talks will ever be held.
But today, the Soviet called for a special session of the United Nations or an international conference to discuss disarmament.
The discussions were proposed at this week's NATO conference in Paris.
Officials here also said it was not certain the United States would participate even if the discussions do take place.
Dulles was said to feel that changing the list of disarmament conferees might break the stalemate. For years, the United States, Britain, France and Canada have carried the load, negotiating with Russia as members of the United Nations disarmament subcommittee.

creating bases in West Europe for U. S.-made missiles which won't be ready for about 18 months.
The idea was adopted in principle, but the United States had to compromise by agreeing to the new East-West talks on the foreign minister level.
Dulles, officials here said, pictures the proposed negotiations as strictly procedural. As he sees it, they would not deal with the substance of disarmament, but rather would seek a way out of the deadlock argument on how to proceed.
But Dulles still clings to his belief, officials said, that the best way to cope with Russia's new long-range striking power is through building as many launching sites as possible for retaliatory medium range 1,500-mile missiles.
Only Britain, whose Parliament agreed Friday to accept the bases, Turkey and the Netherlands so far have said yes to missile launching areas.
West Germany appeared a highly unlikely prospect, particularly as regards setting up bases in its front-line territory between the Rhine River and the barbed wire marking the boundary between East and West Germany.
Dulles conferred Friday in Madrid with Spain's President Francisco Franco. Dulles said he gave the Spanish leader an interpretation of the NATO meeting, and added that the question of Spanish bases was not discussed.

Yule Spirit Back Again

The local spirit of Christmas almost received a rude jolt last night when it was learned that a yuletide prize was stolen from Glitt's Ice Cream, S. Court St.
However, the spirit returned today when it was learned that the stolen item had been recovered.
According to owner Charles H. Glitt a bicycle to be given away next week was taken from in front of his store at about 7:30 p. m. The cycle was on display for all customers to see.
Circleville Police said the bicycle was found this morning near the Norfolk and Western Railroad in the vicinity of Weldon Ave. by a youth who lives in that area. The cycle was scratched and muddy but none the worse for wear.
Glitt, elated by the fortunate turn of events, presented the finder's family with a box of Christmas candy.

Parachuting 'Pilot' Believed To Be Flare

NEWARK (AP)—A railroad employee at nearby Outville thought he saw a pilot parachute from an airplane Friday. But investigation by the highway patrol turned up only a flare parachute near Outville. It apparently was dropped by a plane groping through overcast skies.

U.S. Scholarship Program Slated For Congress

House Education Panel Chairman Silent on Vast NEA Suggestion
WASHINGTON (AP)—Proposals for some sort of federal scholarship program probably will be offered in the new congressional session starting Jan. 7.
Rep. Barden (D-NC), chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee, said today his committee "has been giving consideration to a program and will very likely make some expression of its views during the next session."
Barden said he preferred not to comment on the proposals made Friday by the National Education Assn.
The NEA suggested the federal government start an educational support program of indefinite length which would increase in cost from about $1.1 billion the first year to about $4.8 billion in five years.
The NEA program includes proposals for college scholarships for at least 20,000 high school graduates each year, and at least 5,000 fellowships annually for university graduate study.
A statement from the NEA legislative commission suggested scholarship awards might average $1,200 per year to start and fellowships $3,000 per year.
THAT would make the total starting cost for scholarships and fellowships about $40 million annually. This would increase to about $160 million in four years.
Twenty-seven bills proposing federal scholarships in higher education have been referred to the House Education Committee. Six of them relate to scientific scholarships.
The NEA program, in addition to the scholarships and fellowships, proposes:
1. At least $25 million a year for expansion of services of state education agencies in all fields, not alone in science and mathematics education or in testing and guidance.
2. Passage of pending legislation to allow teachers to make income tax deductions for the cost of professional improvement such as work at summer school.
3. Continuation of such federal activities as vocational education, library services and school lunches "until it can be demonstrated that the need can be met from other resources."
James L. McCaskill, NEA legislative director, and William G. Carr, NEA executive secretary, said the whole NEA program should be carried out through state channels.

The Legacy of Luke Memorable Interview Tells Of Mary's Inspiring Faith

Editor's Note: Were it not for the gospel of Luke, the world would not possess the powerfully moving words spoken between Mary and the messenger of the Lord at the Annunciation. There is reason to believe Luke received the information directly from Mary. Here is how the interview may have come about.
By GEORGE CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
Only a mother knows the measure of that greatest drama: The bringing into the world of a new child.
No other could realize the yearnings, the anxieties and uncertainties, the tremendous joys and high dreams of bestowing life. No other but God.
So it was that the perceptive physician Luke, in his project to trace the genesis of Jesus, turned his course toward Mary. He walked rapidly, astir with hope.
It was about 20 miles from Nazareth to Capernaum, past undulating fields, vineyards and clusters of acacias and yew trees. Oxen-pulled carts, loaded with autumn's final crops, trundled along the road.
Luke glanced at the gray sky. Winter's rains soon would be starting. Smoke hung over the farm houses, and from within the rock pens came shouts, and the bleating of sheep getting a last shearing of the year.
IF MARY still lived, she would be in her 70s now. Almost 30 years before, her Son had made His tremendous sacrifice for man. Luke prayed silently. Grant that he might find her . . . she could reveal so much . . .
The road curved steadily downward, descending from the high, clear region of Nazareth, 1,600 feet in elevation, to the Galilee lake, 700 feet below sea level. Luke passed through Magdala and on beside the clear, murmurous lake.
Here, on these shores, the Lord of Lords had stood and preached, a commanding figure, serene as the sun, forceful as lightning. Luke's eyes were misty as he passed the seven fountains and entered the fishing town of Capernaum.
It was a gray town, built of somber gray basalt. Gray streets, gray oaks, strangely shaped and solidified, their grayness darkened by the overcast.
A woman with a basket of onions on her head directed Luke to the house of John. This hardy apostle, the youngest of Jesus' band, would be about 50, little older than Luke. At the crucifixion, he had taken Mary into his care.
The house seemed different than the others. It was built of the same gray stone, but there was a bright pleasantness about it. A trellised bower of roses, and golden heliotrope and oleander bloomed behind the hedges.
There, in the courtyard, John sat mending a net.
"Peace be unto you,"
LUKE MOVED through the gate, and after they had exchanged blessings, the Greek doctor explained his purpose. John nodded slowly, meditatively. He stepped to the door, and pulled aside the woven covering for Luke to enter.

Was Mary there? There is no proof that Luke talked with her, but indications that he did are many and persuasive. He alone obtained intimate material about Jesus' infancy.
His language, in his book, is typically Greek in style, except for portions devoted to Mary, which have a distinctive semitic flavor as if quoting her own words directly.
Moreover, Luke himself writes that no one but Mary had the information. "Mary kept all these things . . . in her heart." Presumably, he saw her, must have had view.
The years had not aged her. Her skin still was soft and smooth, and her eyes shone with a tender, wise tranquility. She pressed Luke's hand, smiling, and led him to a stone seat in the garden.
The perfume of full-throated flowers was in the air.
Indeed, the coming of her beloved Son had been long ago, but those moments lived on in her mind and soul. Mary spoke quietly, her words caressing each cherished memory, each precious scene.
He had been hers, yet not hers; he had belonged, yet not belonged; what made him so dear also had parted him from her. Of many things, she had told no one before. Yet, it should be known.
SHE HAD BEEN a young virgin, betrothed to Joseph in a happy, festive ceremony held at full moon before witnesses and neighbors in Nazareth. In turn the couple had sipped the cup of ritual wine. "Blessed, art thou, O Lord . . . he has sanctified . . . the betrothed . . . Honey wafers had been passed to the guests.
Not long thereafter the miracle had occurred. To her, shy and pious, had come the bewildering message, brought by an angel of God. "Hail, O favored one," he had said, "the Lord is with you."

U.S. Science Education Said 'Disappointing'

COLUMBUS (AP)—Two leaders in the field of science, both disappointed at American scientific education, spoke at Ohio State university's autumn commencement exercises Friday.
One speaker, George E. Probst, executive director of the Thomas Alva Edison Foundation, said American science education has "fallen behind and deteriorated, particularly in the high school."
The other, Dr. Dael Wolfe, executive officer of the American Assn. for the Advancement of Science, said the Russians "are improving very rapidly, and if we don't take some valiant steps very soon to improve our educational system, we will be lagging farther behind 15 years from now."
Probst cited instances in which the Russians were ahead of the U. S. These are:
The fact that America has an enormous shortage of science teachers. Russia has no shortage. America has 56 high school students learning Russian. In Russia, 40 per cent of secondary school students take English.
America pays its teachers low salaries. Russia pays enormous salaries to its science teachers.
Russia spends twice as high a percentage of its national income on education as does America.

U.S. Solons Debate Giving Allies Veto on Missile Firing

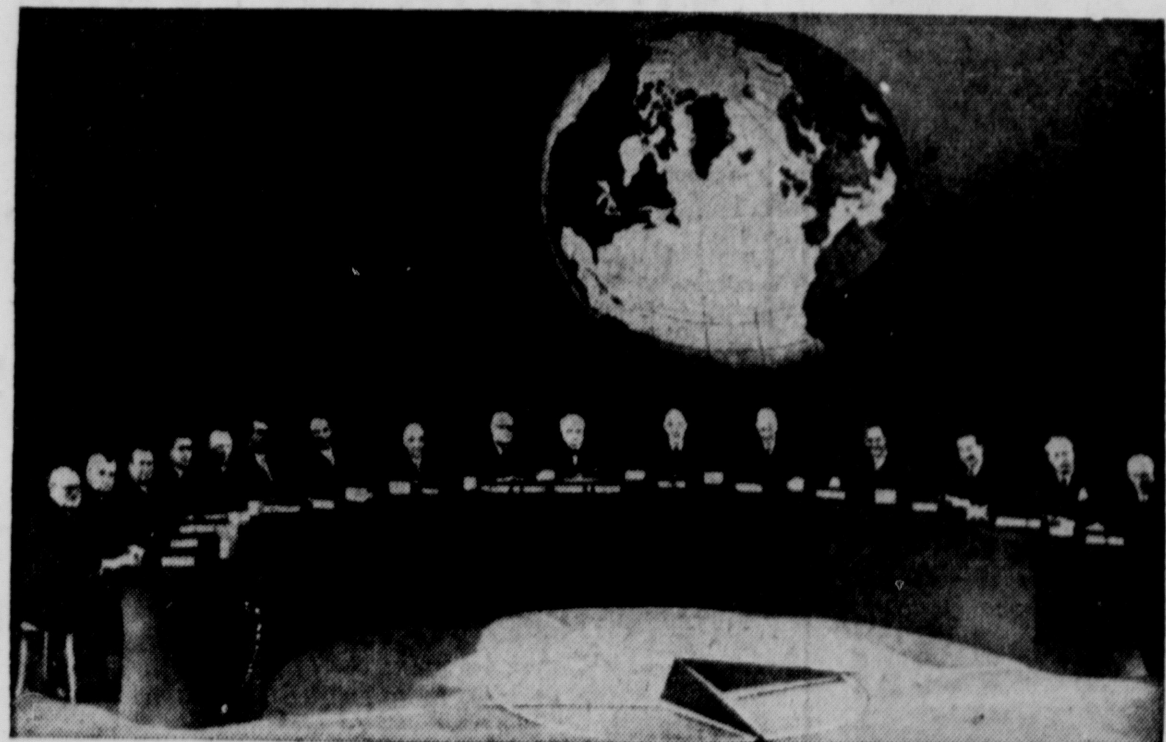

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two senators said today that veto power by Britain or any other ally would impede speedy use of U. S. ballistic missiles if it should ever become necessary to fire them from overseas bases.
Sens. Hickenlooper (R-Iowa) and Mansfield (D-Mont.) agreed that prior negotiations will have settled questions of how and when missiles would have to be fired.
The British House of Commons today night approved decisions reached at this week's North Atlantic Alliance conference and agreed to installation of U. S. nuclear missile bases in Britain.
Prime Minister Macmillan told Commons prior to the 289-251 vote that Britain would have "a complete veto" over use of any missiles based in that country.
Sen. Monroney (D-Okla.) said the British "certainly should retain the right to reserve controls over firing since the outbreak of

New Summit Meeting Seen Eventual Goal

Gromyko Claims U.S. Blocks Disarmament Efforts in U.N.
MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet government called today for a special session of the United Nations or an international conference to discuss disarmament.
Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko said disarmament talks could pave the way for an East-West summit conference.
Addressing Russia's parliament, Gromyko apparently rejected a foreign ministers meeting on disarmament proposed Thursday by the 15 NATO nations.
"The West has consistently blocked all disarmament efforts in the U.N.," Gromyko said, "and you can judge for yourselves what sort of result can be expected from a meeting of foreign ministers under these conditions."
Gromyko did not specify which nations should attend an international conference, though he indicated Red China should not be left out. In the recent session of the U.N. General Assembly, Russia insisted that all 82 U.N. members (which do not include Red China) should take part in disarmament talks.
THAT ASSEMBLY session increased the U.N. Disarmament Commission to 25 members but Russia has declared she will boycott the commission.
A subcommittee of the commission became stalemated last summer when Russia refused to accept Western disarmament plans and the West countered that Soviet disarmament suggestions would not provide safeguards to insure that Russia complies.
Speaking after Gromyko, Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchev called for an East-West summit conference "to solve all the problems that trouble humanity, including disarmament."
Khrushchev spoke hoarsely and with considerable emotion.
"We tell the United States to abandon its policy of positions of strength," the pudgy party boss said. "Let us solve our problems by peaceful means on the basis of equality."
"Let us outlaw war."
To reach an agreement, he said: "Firstly, we must abstain from discussing problems concerning ideological differences between our two systems. We must leave the solution of these problems to the people themselves."
"Secondly, we must recognize the status quo. If Western states recognize this, it will be easy to come closer together and solve our problems."

Mistletoe Sales Boom after Boy Confides in Cop

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—"Mistletoe, mister" a youngster standing on a street corner asked a passing policeman.
"Maybe," said the cop. "How's business?"
Not so hot, 11-year-old Peter Ingram said Friday. He hadn't been able to sell any of the mistletoe he had gathered near his home in Topanga Canyon, five miles away. And, to make matters worse, the family friend who was supposed to drive him home had failed to show up.
The officer took Peter to the police station and called his mother, Mrs. Henry Ingram. When she arrived to pick up her son the station was gaily decorated with mistletoe trees.
The policemen had chipped in and bought Peter's entire stock.

Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn.) said the relatively close British vote shows that "American foreign policy has become a domestic political issue in England. We are hopeful that we have the ready cooperation of the British, but this vote proves that all the wounds are not yet healed."

New Summit Meeting Seen Eventual Goal

Gromyko Claims U.S. Blocks Disarmament Efforts in U.N.

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet government called today for a special session of the United Nations or an international conference to discuss disarmament.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko said disarmament talks could pave the way for an East-West summit conference.

Addressing Russia's parliament, Gromyko apparently rejected a foreign ministers meeting on disarmament proposed Thursday by the 15 NATO nations.

"The West has consistently blocked all disarmament efforts in the U.N.," Gromyko said, "and you can judge for yourselves what sort of result can be expected from a meeting of foreign ministers under these conditions."

Gromyko did not specify which nations should attend an international conference, though he indicated Red China should not be left out. In the recent session of the U.N. General Assembly, Russia insisted that all 82 U.N. members (which do not include Red China) should take part in disarmament talks.

THAT ASSEMBLY session increased the U.N. Disarmament Commission to 25 members but Russia has declared she will boycott the commission.

A subcommittee of the commission became stalemated last summer when Russia refused to accept Western disarmament plans and the West countered that Soviet disarmament suggestions would not provide safeguards to insure that Russia complies.

Speaking after Gromyko, Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchev called for an East-West summit conference "to solve all the problems that trouble humanity, including disarmament."

Khrushchev spoke hoarsely and with considerable emotion. "We tell the United States to abandon its policy of positions of strength," the pudgy party boss said. "Let us solve our problems by peaceful means on the basis of equality."

"Let us outlaw war." To reach an agreement, he said: "Firstly, we must abstain from discussing problems concerning ideological differences between our two systems. We must leave the solution of these problems to the people themselves."

"Secondly, we must recognize the status quo. If Western states recognize this, it will be easy to come closer together and solve our problems."

Mistletoe Sales Boom after Boy Confides in Cop

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—"Mistletoe, mister!" a youngster standing on a street corner asked a passing policeman.

"Maybe," said the cop. "How's business?"

Not so hot, 11-year-old Peter Ingram said Friday. He hadn't been able to sell any of the mistletoe he had gathered near his home in Topanga Canyon, five miles away.

And, to make matters worse, the family friend who was supposed to drive him home had failed to show up.

The officer took Peter to the police station and called his mother, Mrs. Henry Ingram. When she arrived to pick up her son the station was gaily decorated with mistletoe tinsel.

The policeman had chipped in and bought Peter's entire stock.

Dulles Pessimistic About Arms Talks

WASHINGTON (AP)—Diplomatic sources here said today Secretary of State Dulles has doubts that new East-West disarmament talks will ever be held.

But today, the Soviet called for a special session of the United Nations or an international conference to discuss disarmament. The discussions were proposed at this week's NATO conference in Paris.

Officials here also said it was not certain the United States would participate even if the discussions do take place.

Dulles was said to feel that changing the list of disarmament conferees might break the stalemate. For years, the United States, Britain, France and Canada have carried the load, negotiating with Russia as members of the United Nations disarmament subcommittee.

TOGETHER at the Atlantic Pact summit conference, President Eisenhower and Dulles argued for creating bases in West Europe for U. S.-made missiles which won't be ready for about 18 months.

The idea was adopted in principle, but the United States had to compromise by agreeing to the new East-West talks on the foreign minister level.

Dulles, officials here said, pictures the proposed negotiations as strictly procedural. As he sees it, they would not deal with the substance of disarmament, but rather would seek a way out of the deadlock argument on how to proceed.

But Dulles still clings to his belief, officials said, that the best way to cope with Russia's new long-range striking power is through building as many launching sites as possible for retaliatory medium range 1,500-mile missiles.

Only Britain, whose Parliament agreed Friday to accept the bases, Turkey and the Netherlands so far have said yes to missile launching areas.

West Germany appeared a highly unlikely prospect, particularly as regards setting up bases in its front-line territory between the Rhine River and the barbed wire marking the boundary between East and West Germany.

Dulles conferred Friday in Madrid with Spain's President Francisco Franco. Dulles said he gave the Spanish leader an interpretation of the NATO meeting, and added that the question of Spanish bases was not discussed.

Nine Elected To Direct Affairs Of Baha'i Faith

Word has just been received by Mrs. J. O. Eagleson, Chairman of the local Baha'i Group, from their National Administrative Offices in Wilmette, Ill., that, following the passing in London of His Eminence, Shoghi Effendi, World Head of the Faith, the hands of the Faith in a recent meeting at their World Center, Haifa, Israel, elected nine of their members to conduct and protect the affairs of the Faith from that Center.

The names of this body of nine are Ruhyyih Rabbani, Hasan Shihrazil, Ali Akbar Furutan, Jalal Khazeh Adelbert Muehschlegel, Charles Mason Remey, Amelia Collins, Leroy Ioan and Paul E. Haney. The last four are American citizens.

This body of nine will coordinate all the activities of Baha'i Communists in over 250 countries and islands of the world. They will maintain and expand the Baha'i Shrines and Holy Places in Akka and Haifa, which the late Head of the Cause had made into beauty spots of the Mediterranean area.

They will carry forward all the plans outlined by him for the Faith's expansion and development, including the holding of five Intercontinental Conferences which he scheduled for 1958 in Kampala, Uganda; Sydney, Australia; Chicago, U.S.A.; Frankfurt, Germany; and Djakarta, Indonesia.

They will also see that the two Baha'i Houses of Worship in Africa and Australia, work on which is at present being carried out, are completed; and that the third one, contemplated for Europe, is built.

It will be their responsibility to see that the National and Regional Baha'i Assemblies, which have grown in number from two to twenty-six and which at present represent more than 4,500 Baha'i Centers, are steadily increased.

The Hands of the Baha'i Faith, Mrs. Eagleson said, is an institution established by Baha'u'llah, its Founder, and designated as its Chief Stewards. At present they number twenty seven, and represent the five continents of the globe.

Luke's Legacy

whelmed by the astounding appearance of years ago. "I was greatly troubled at the saying," she related, "and considered in my mind what sort of greeting this might be."

Unobtrusively, Luke etched her words on his wax tablet. She went on.

The angel had said to her, "Do not be afraid Mary, for you have found favor with God. And behold, you will conceive in your womb and bear a son, and you shall call his name Jesus."

Mary's voice took on a melodious quality, like muted singing, as she repeated the angel's saying about her Son: "He will be great, and will be called the Son of the Most High . . . and of his kingdom there will be no end."

MARY RECALLED her stunned question: "How can this be since I have no husband?"

And the angel had said, "The Holy Spirit will come upon you, will overshadow you; therefore and the power of the Most High the child to be born will be called holy, the son of God."

And Mary had said: "Behold, I am the handmaid of the Lord; let it be to me according to your word."

Luke's hand trembled as he marked down the wondrous passages. Mary told how, in her excitement, she had left Nazareth, and hastened to the home of her elderly cousin, Elizabeth, in Judea, who had met her with a jubilant, intuitive cry:

"Blessed are you among women, and blessed is the fruit of your womb . . . mother of my Lord."

Mary, remembering the incident, spoke very low, and Luke leaned toward her to catch each word. She seemed to be experiencing anew the emotions she knew then, and again, low and sweet, came the singing tones — the reverent, thrilled rapture of a maiden opening her heart at her older kinswoman's salutation:

"My soul magnifies the Lord, and my spirit rejoices in God my Savior, for He has regarded the low estate of his handmaiden. For behold, henceforth, all generations will call me blessed; for He who is mighty has done great things for me, and holy is His name . . ."

He has put down the mighty from their thrones, and exalted those of low degree; he has . . ."

The song continued, beautiful, exalting, pure strains of human transport at one with God, and Luke inscribed all the words — words that would be the great hymns of Christianity — the Ave Maria, the Magnificat, the Benedicta, the Gloria in Excelsis.

Many other things, too, Luke alone learned concerning Mary and the child she reared. She went into her curtained room and from a chest, inscribed with the heraldic Lion of David, she took scrolls and ancestral documents to show him.

Ancient church traditions say that Luke, an artist and musician as well as a physician, painted a picture of Mary during his stay at the garden-enclosed house in Capernaum.

There, he had touched the well-spring of the majestic moment, of God's rendezvous with man, the juncture of flesh and eternity. But Luke's mission still was unfinished. He had yet to reconstruct that arduous, fateful trip to Bethlehem. (NEXT: An inn with no room.)

with a 56-38 margin the Tigers retained their pace to go ahead as much as 64-48 during the period. From that point there was no doubt as to the final outcome.

The Kitten reserves didn't fare so well, dropping a 39-32 decision to the junior Greenfielders.

KITTEN Jake Bailey collected 14 tallies but his effort was not enough to match Harewood's 15 and Wiseman's seven for Greenfield.

The Kittens worst moment came in the third quarter when they scored only two points. Greenfield, meanwhile, tallied 16.

Nine Elected To Direct Affairs Of Baha'i Faith

Word has just been received by Mrs. J. O. Eagleson, Chairman of the local Baha'i Group, from their National Administrative Offices in Wilmette, Ill., that, following the passing in London of His Eminence, Shoghi Effendi, World Head of the Faith, the hands of the Faith in a recent meeting at their World Center, Haifa, Israel, elected nine of their members to conduct and protect the affairs of the Faith from that Center.

The names of this body of nine are Ruhyyih Rabbani, Hasan Shirazi, Ali Akbar Furutan, Jalal Khazeh, Adelbert Muehschlegel, Charles Mason Remy, Amelia Collins, Leroy Ioas and Paul E. Haney. The last four are American citizens.

This body of nine will coordinate all the activities of Baha'i Communists in over 250 countries and islands of the world. They will maintain and expand the Baha'i Shrines and Holy Places in Akka and Haifa, which the late Head of the Cause had made into beauty spots of the Mediterranean area.

They will carry forward all the plans outlined by him for the Faith's expansion and development, including the holding of five Intercontinental Conferences which he scheduled for 1958 in Kampala, Uganda; Sydney, Australia; Chicago, U.S.A.; Frankfurt, Germany; and Djakarta, Indonesia.

They will also see that the two Baha'i Houses of Worship in Africa and Australia, work on which is at present being carried out, are completed; and that the third one, contemplated for Europe, is built. It will be their responsibility to see that the National and Regional Baha'i Assemblies, which have grown in number from two to twenty-six and which at present represent more than 4,500 Baha'i Centers, are steadily increased.

The Hands of the Baha'i Faith, Mrs. Eagleson said, is an institution established by Baha'u'llah, its Founder, and designated as its Chief Stewards. At present they number twenty seven, and represent the five continents of the globe.

whelmed by the astounding appearance of years ago. "I was greatly troubled at the saying," she related, "and considered in my mind what sort of greeting this might be."

Unobtrusively, Luke etched her words on his wax tablet. She went on.

The angel had said to her, "Do not be afraid Mary, for you have found favor with God. And behold, you will conceive in your womb and bear a son, and you shall call his name Jesus."

Mary's voice took on a melodious quality, like muted singing, as she repeated the angel's saying about her Son: "He will be great, and will be called the Son of the Most High . . . and of his kingdom there will be no end."

MARY RECALLED her stunned question: "How can this be since I have no husband?"

And the angel had said, "The Holy Spirit will come upon you, and you will overshadow me; therefore, and the power of the Most High child to be born will be called holy, the son of God . . ."

And Mary had said: "Behold, I am the handmaid of the Lord; let it be to me according to your word."

Luke's hand trembled as he marked down the wondrous passages. Mary told how, in her excitement, she had left Nazareth, and hastened to the home of her elderly cousin, Elizabeth, in Judea, who had met her with a jubilant, intuitive cry:

"Blessed are you among women, and blessed is the fruit of your womb . . . mother of my Lord."

Mary, remembering the incident, spoke very low, and Luke leaned toward her to catch each word. She seemed to be experiencing anew the emotions she knew then, and again, low and sweet, came the singing tones — the reverent, thrilled rapture of a maiden opening her heart at her older kinswoman's salutation:

"My soul magnifies the Lord, and my spirit rejoices in God my Savior, for He has regarded the low estate of his handmaiden. For behold, henceforth, all generations will call me blessed; for He who is mighty has done great things for me, and holy is His name . . . He has put down the mighty from their thrones, and exalted those of low degree; he has . . ."

The song continued, beautiful, exalting, pure strains of human transport at one with God, and Luke inscribed all the words — words that would be the great hymns of Christianity — the Ave Maria, the Magnificat, the Benedicta, the Gloria in Excelsis.

Many other things, too, Luke alone learned concerning Mary and the child she reared. She went into her curtained room and from a chest, inscribed with the heraldic Lion of David, she took scrolls and ancestral documents to show him.

Ancient church traditions say that Luke, an artist and musician as well as a physician, painted a picture of Mary during his stay at the garden-enclosed house in Capernaum.

There, he had touched the well-spring of the majestic moment, of God's rendezvous with man, the juncture of flesh and eternity. But Luke's mission still was unfinished. He had yet to reconstruct that arduous, fateful trip to Bethlehem. (NEXT: An inn with no room.)

with a 56-38 margin the Tigers retained their pace to go ahead as much as 64-48 during the period. From that point there was no doubt as to the final outcome.

The Kittens' reserves didn't fare so well, dropping a 39-32 decision to the junior Greenfielders.

KITTEN Jake Bailey collected 14 tallies but his effort was not enough to match Harewood's 15 and Wiseman's seven for Greenfield.

The Kittens' worst moment came in the third quarter when they scored only two points. Greenfield, meanwhile, tallied 16.

Circleville's next contest is slated next Saturday night at Franklin Heights in Columbus.

General Lew Wallace, who was territorial governor of New Mexico, wrote much of his celebrated novel, "Ben Hur," while serving in office.

CANDLE IN THE NIGHT

Simplest, humblest gleam of light... yet it rolls back the shadows. And striking the new-fallen snow, it casts a dazzling halo upon boughs of pine and holly.

Like a candle in the night Christmas rolls back the shadows of time, and touching the life of man, gives an aura of peace and good will to every day and deed.

It was truly the simplest and humblest event in history, this birth of a child in a stable. But from it shines "the true Light which lighteth every man that cometh into the world." And to live in that Light, to reflect it upon the world around us; this is peace and good will.

Like a candle in the night the Church beckons us to the gleam of its ageless Truth. And as we come to live by the Church's teaching, our faith will roll back the shadows for those around us.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Pope's Annual Yule Message Due Sunday

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The Pope's annual Christmas message this year will be given the most complete circulation possibly ever given a radio message.

Pius XII will speak to the world Sunday at 5 a.m. EST.

After he finishes, the Vatican radio will begin broadcasting translations of his message in English, German, Spanish, and many other languages on 31.10, 25.67, 19.84 and 13.80 meters.

General Lew Wallace, who was territorial governor of New Mexico, wrote much of his celebrated novel, "Ben Hur," while serving in office.

CANDLE IN THE NIGHT

Simplest, humblest gleam of light... yet it rolls back the shadows. And striking the new-fallen snow, it casts a dazzling halo upon boughs of pine and holly.

Like a candle in the night Christmas rolls back the shadows of time, and touching the life of man, gives an aura of peace and good will to every day and deed.

It was truly the simplest and humblest event in history, this birth of a child in a stable. But from it shines "the true Light which lighteth every man that cometh into the world." And to live in that Light, to reflect it upon the world around us; this is peace and good will.

Like a candle in the night the Church beckons us to the gleam of its ageless Truth. And as we come to live by the Church's teaching, our faith will roll back the shadows for those around us.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake (2) For his children's sake, (3) For the sake of his community and nation, (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

A Ray of Hope in Algeria

A faint ray of hope is emerging from the Algerian situation which is troubling France and the West so severely.

Acceptance by the French National Assembly of Premier Felix Gaillard's proposals to grant concessions to nationalism in Algeria indicates an awakening of a measure of realism by the French.

The assembly accepted a plan for restricted home rule for the Algerians and a plan for elections. The significance is that both of these were proposed by the last French regime and the assembly overthrew the government in refusing to accept them.

The second development giving some hope is France's partial acceptance of the offer of mediation made by Tunisian President Bourguiba and Moroccan King Mohammed. True, the French want the two Africans to negotiate only for a ceasefire, but this is a start in the right direction.

France is in an untenable position, just as she was in Indochina. She hasn't developed the grace to bow out as has Britain in similar situations.

Partly this may result from France's hopes for development of the oil and other mineral reserves in Algeria. Perhaps if some method could be devised to assure France of opportunity to exploit these for the benefit of all—as Algeria would not be able to do for many years as an independent nation—then the French will be satisfied to grant freedom to the North African province.

Whenever I am among foreigners, Europeans, Asiatics, Africans, Latin Americans, I am among intense nationalists. They all are excited about their particular country and extol its special virtues. However, to speak of the United States of America as a nation, to say that it needs to be defended, to believe that it possesses special virtues—these seem to be sins.

Most of the Americans present become embarrassed, as though one were referring to an old grandfather who could no longer control his nervous system. Some even openly apologize for the crudeness of matching someone else's chauvinism by proclaiming American chauvinism. How vulgar can you be!

There is a mood about Russia that I have long observed. It started way back in 1917 and it continues to this day. Those in such a mood say: it is wrong to confuse Russians with Communists. The Communists have governed Russia for 40 years, but the Russians hate them! The Russians would have got rid of the Communists but they are afraid that foreigners will conquer their country; therefore, they have submitted to Lenin and Trotsky, to Stalin, and now to Khrushchev.

But soon, any day (it has been so since 1917) they, the Russian intelligentsia, youth, peasants (take your choice), will rise up, rid the world of the Communist beasts, and there will be peace and good will upon Earth.

This is the oldest line about Soviet Russia. I heard it in 1917-18 from John Reed and Raymond Robins; I heard it when I lived in China and Borodin was trying to conquer that country; I heard it in 1933 when Litvinov was winning recognition for Russia from Franklin D. Roosevelt; I heard it from the White Russians who had run away during the Russian Revolution and who,

Beware of Yuletide Fires

By Herman N. Bundesen, M.D.

I don't like to discuss anything as tragic as fire at this time of the year. But with Christmas so close at hand, and with those dry trees we insist upon setting up in our living rooms presenting such a great potential danger, I've got to give you a few safety rules regarding fire.

Even without a Christmas tree in the house, the most likely place for a fire to start is in the living room or kitchen. Next in order are bedrooms and basements.

Keep plenty of safe ash trays about. These trays should be non-combustible, of course, and also non-spillable, and large enough to hold plenty of ashes.

After holiday parties and every night before retiring, look beneath the sofa cushions and around stuffed chairs for accidentally dropped cigarettes.

Take a few minutes to plan emergency escape routes in your home. If fire should cut off the front or back doors, or both, decide now on the best way of getting outside safely.

If you have to dash through smoke and flames, hold your breath. Remember also that in a smoke-filled room the air is usually fresher near the floor.

Feel the door before opening it. If it is hot, block it with furniture and seal with wet towels and blankets. Try to get out another way.

breaks out, naturally, is to get everyone safely out of the building. But don't jump from upper stories except as a last resort. Wait as long as you can for firemen to help you.

Once outside, never re-enter a burning building. The smoke and gases from even the smallest fire can be deadly. Since children very often try to go back into their homes, you had better keep them restrained.

Last year fires in North America took 11,000 lives and destroyed property worth $1,385,000,000.

Don't let our gay holiday season bring disaster to your home.

But soon, any day (it has been so since 1917) they, the Russian intelligentsia, youth, peasants (take your choice), will rise up, rid the world of the Communist beasts, and there will be peace and good will upon Earth.

This is the oldest line about Soviet Russia. I heard it in 1917-18 from John Reed and Raymond Robins; I heard it when I lived in China and Borodin was trying to conquer that country; I heard it in 1933 when Litvinov was winning recognition for Russia from Franklin D. Roosevelt; I heard it from the White Russians who had run away during the Russian Revolution and who, having settled in various countries and having restored their aristocratic lineages, hated the Communists (to whom they referred as Jews) but loved Russia and grew ecstatic ever with Stalin (who was not a Russian but a Georgian), when he became an ally (it was a foul trick) during World War II.

Now, it pops up again and one is given a big dose of circumstantial leads to believe that just because Hungary and Poland talked up to Khrushchev, the Kremlin crowd is on the brink of defeat and the Communist world on the verge of dissolution and that all we need to do is to wait for the Russian people to rise in their might and they will send Khrushchev orbiting in a Sputnik. The argument goes that the Hungarian revolt was a success but that Soviet Russia suppressed it. The logic does not present itself, but do you want logic, too?

The sentimental notion is that the Communist Party control over Soviet Russia will be ended in a short time because the Hungarian revolt did not fail but was suppressed. Does that mean that the United States should disarm, put its stockpiles of bombs into the ocean, give up its bases everywhere, stop its missiles and rockets developments and joyfully wait for the new Russian Revolution to put Khrushchev in a Sputnik and aim the Sputnik at us?

It is a risky thought and those who go about the country promising the United States a revolution in Moscow in a few years are promising more than they can produce. Furthermore, how does anyone know that such a revolution, if it occurred, would not produce Napoleonism rather than peace?

How do we know that Khrushchev might not be replaced by some general who would use the enthusiasm of the moment to engage upon a world-wide campaign of conquest? How do we know that Khrushchev's ally, Mao Tse-tung, would not rally forces that would be worse than what we face today?

I fear that the sentimental line is a dangerous one because Americans are a peace-loving people who hate war and would prefer to think well of their neighbors, and particularly of former allies. It is such an argument which encouraged the mammas to make such a fuss about bringing the boys home for Christmas in 1945-46, scaring members of Congress into the premature disbanding of American forces after World War II.

A better and truer position is to keep our powder dry and to be ready to shoot it out with anybody who wants to subdue this country.

Fit the Crime

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Policeman Bernard J. Davis would like to install some stolen property on the thief who took it from his home. The loot: a set of handcuffs.

breaks out, naturally, is to get everyone safely out of the building. But don't jump from upper stories except as a last resort. Wait as long as you can for firemen to help you.

Once outside, never re-enter a burning building. The smoke and gases from even the smallest fire can be deadly. Since children very often try to go back into their homes, you had better keep them restrained.

Last year fires in North America took 11,000 lives and destroyed property worth $1,385,000,000.

Don't let our gay holiday season bring disaster to your home.

Question and Answer
A. D.: How high can the temperature go without endangering the life of the patient?

Answer: Some patients have survived although their temperatures rose as high as 113 degrees. However, a temperature past 107 degrees is extremely dangerous.

SYNOPSIS: Richard subdues the Phantom and takes the diamond back to Santa. Santa says he cannot now give Richard courage and wisdom for he has proved that he already has them.

CHAPTER 16 SANTA LAND

"What does it all mean?" asked Richard in confusion. "Why do you say I am already brave and wise? I got the things you asked for but I was afraid all the time."

"It is a wise man who knows when to be afraid," said Santa. "And it's a very brave man indeed who goes forward when he would rather turn and run."

"You mean, then, that I am now a truly proper prince?"

"You are," smiled Santa. "And I shall give you two gifts to help you remember always the proper prince you are."

He took the golden thread Richard had brought him from the Green Ghoul. He wove a ring with it and placed it on Richard's finger.

"Wear this and wisdom will always be yours."

Then he plucked the black diamond from the Phantom's ring and set it in the handle of a silver dagger.

"Carry this and never be afraid again."

Patrick Tweedleknives sat up on the floor. "As for strength," said he, "You're already the strongest creature on earth. I ought to know."

"How do you know?" asked the prince.

Santa laughed and put his arms around Richard's shoulders.

"Tweedleknives was both the Green Ghoul and the Phantom of the Sea," he told the astonished boy. "You see, he can change his shape at will and so he made himself into those awful creatures in order to test you."

"What a prince!" repeated Tweedleknives and collapsed again on the floor.

"Now," said Santa. "Let us go to the workshops for tomorrow is Christmas Eve and there is much work to be done."

"Christmas Eve!" exclaimed Richard. "King Ignatz of Ketchikan swore to conquer my father's kingdom by Christmas Day. I must hurry back to my own land at once!"

"I have thought of that," said Santa. "Word has come to me that there is no joy in Mitzenpoo this Christmas season. King Ignatz is indeed at the gates. The people are in distress and not one child in Mitzenpoo will hang a stocking tomorrow night."

"I shall fly!" cried Richard. "Wait and fly with me," said Santa. "Now, while I see to the loading of the sleigh you go to the toy shops. For the rest of your life you will be prince and king. Tonight be just a boy."

Richard gladly did as Santa told him and went off with Tweedleknives. What a fairy land of toys he found in the toy shop!

Joyfully he climbed on a red bicycle and with Tweedleknives on the handlebars whizzed round and round the shop. Then he tried out an enormous harmonica. Tweedleknives stomped and sang and Richard played a merry jig.

Then they took a speed sled out into the snow and zoomed down the highest hills, shouting and laughing all the way.

They returned to the shop in time for supper of blue berry pie, molasses cookies and coconut cake.

After that they played checkers

3 Bank Bandits Get Long Prison Terms

CLEVELAND (AP) — Three men accused of robbing the Andover Bank of $24,862 last Oct. 30 drew prison terms of 9 to 20 years Friday from Federal Judge James C. Connell. All had pleaded guilty.

Sentenced were Charles Bradbury, 24, of Grand River; Karl L. Kellerman, 20, of Painesville; and Paul R. Pritt, 21, of Eastlake.

Ohio Labor Chides Chamber On 'Right-to-Work' Stand

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The United Organized Labor of Ohio organization today termed the so-called "right to work" campaign a "misnomer" and took the Ohio Chamber of Commerce to task for its announced support of such proposed legislation.

The labor group is made up of representatives from the four major labor organizations in the state. They include the top officers of the CIO and AFL.

It's statement issued today followed action of the Ohio Chamber urging its members to support proposed legislation sponsored by groups which call it "right to work" proposals.

The labor group's statement today said it "regrets" the decision of the Chamber "to pursue a course that could seriously weaken unions, drive wages and purchasing power down and turn Ohio into a 'second-class economic state.'"

The statement said the labor group is "asking the people of Ohio to keep five points in mind from the start of the Chamber's campaign."

It listed these points:

- "1. The phrase, 'right to work,' is an inaccurate description of the law. Such a law guarantees no one the right to work. What it does is make it illegal for an employer and his workers to freely negotiate and would result in compulsory open shop conditions in Ohio."
- "2. A union shop is based on the principle that those who benefit from a union have an obligation to support that union by joining it and paying dues."
- "3. There is no force or compulsion in a union shop. Joining the union is a condition of employment to wear certain safety equipment, to eat lunch at a certain time or to wear certain safety equipment."
- "4. The Chamber's proposal is designed to weaken labor unions. What labor needs now is support in its fight against dishonest unionism, not a law to punish it or weaken it."
- "5. Those who usually support such legislation are the ones who consistently oppose legislation that would really help the worker."

Fairfield Cafeman Robbed of $7,000

Shopper with Pistol Brings Probe by Cops

TOLEDO (AP) — Clothing store manager Thomas Harris glanced at the couple looking over men's clothing, then started in surprise. A pistol butt was sticking out of the man's belt.

Harris phoned police and took down the license number of the couple's automobile when they left before officers arrived.

Police found the man a few minutes later. He was Francis Conger, an off-duty patrolman.

Fifth Marine Handed Stiff Prison Sentence

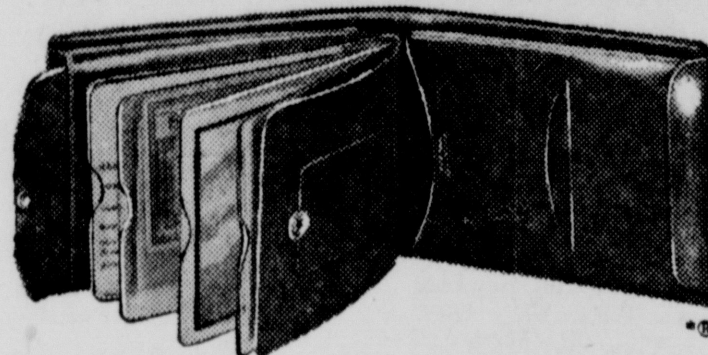

CAMP MCTUREOUS, Okinawa (AP) — Marine Pfc. Willis Brown Jr., 24, Friday was sentenced to eight years at hard labor for the Aug. 4 fatal beating of Adrien R. Nogleby, 19, a Navy hospital corpsman.

Brown was one of five Negro defendants described as a "head-hunting" ring that attacked other servicemen. All have been sentenced including Pfc. Jim Williams Jr., 19, of Dayton, Ohio, who drew 14 years in prison.

of the Langdon home enroute to work. After firing one shot for emphasis, the man fled with a paper bag holding the money.

Farm fires in the United States destroyed more than 150 million dollars in property and equipment in 1956.

and dominoes and tick-tack-toe. They threw darts and slid down bamboo slides and shot toy arrows at a toy target.

So the hours sped by and suddenly it was Christmas Eve and time to go.

With a sigh Richard left the toys. He and Santa climbed into Santa's loaded sleigh.

"Goodbye, prince!" shouted Tweedleknies. "Come again!"

"I will," promised Richard.

But he knew in his heart he never would because forever after he would have to be a proper prince of Mitzenpoo.
